Dear Bill:

In late March John J. McCloy will celebrate his 90th birthday. I think you will agree that Jack has had a remarkable career, spanning both World Wars and more than six decades in finance, the law and international affairs. While we at the Bank are particularly proud of his service here, certainly his experience as Assistant Secretary of War and his immediate post-war years at the World Bank and as High Commissioner for Germany have given him a perspective of the world that is unique.

Both in recognition of his contribution to this country over a long period of time and because I thought an evening with him would be of extreme interest, I am hosting a black tie dinner at the River Club at 6:30 p.m. on March 20 in his honor. You might enjoy being with us, and I would appreciate your response on the enclosed reply card.

I believe Jack would enjoy a folio of letters from each of us wishing him well on his birthday. Therefore, whether you can be with us or not, you might wish to send to me a letter addressed to him that would be included in the album.

With kind personal regards,

Sincerely,
